Will the New Tariff Bill

Start Business Booming?

who are drafting the new tariff law, it is essential that spokesmen for industry let their representatives in Congress know what they think the effect of the proposed schedules will be.

In order to help the Senators, who are toiling so diligently during these torrid weeks in Washington, THE LITERARY DIGEST has asked a number of representative trade journals to tell just what effect they believe the schedules under consideration will have on their respective industries; whether they will help to restore prosperity, and whether they will tend to raise or lower prices. These opinions covering a wide field of industry are presented in the leading article in THE LITERARY DIGEST this week. While the Manufacturers News, Chicago, thinks that the Fordney bill may have its weak spots and that "it may be well to iron out some of its schedules," nevertheless, "the principle back of it apparently has the approval of nine-tenths of the factory owners of the land," it seems to Raw Material, New York, that the Fordney bill "appears to have no friends at all, but enemies by the millions." Retail Selling, Oklahoma City, asserts that a tariff like the one being drafted "will greatly increase cost of
